

ONE TO WORSHIP

Big picture

Forget your florals and your polka dots. There's a new trend this season, and we've developed a little bit of a crush. We've always been fond of a print, but this time it's not just about the pattern, it's about the story behind the pattern. First, Giles Deacon, who has blown up the painting The Execution of Lady Jane Grey, by the 17th-century French artist Delaroche, to provide the prints for his AW11 collection, securing his status as fashion's finest magpie in the process. Next, Selfridges has teamed up with the hip and happening artists' collective The Museum of Everything to create a giant in-store installation (from Friday). It will sell a one-off collection by Clements Ribeiro, based on prints by artists such as Erin Punzel, Tom Wagener and Thomas Beisgen. And if neither of these takes your fancy, there's the new collection of silk shirts, skirts, scarves and dresses by the print designer Charlotte Taylor, which is bold and, frankly, a bit bonkers. (Oversized penguins and spiders, anyone?) So, there you have it, ladies, elegant but doable daywear with a twist. Take your pick.

CATWALKING.COM, EROTEME, NPG, MERT & MARCUS

1 Tom Wagener print dress, £395. 2 Erin Punzel print dress, £395, and 3 Harold Stoffers print dress, £375, both by Clements Ribeiro, from Selfridges. 4 Lobster-print scarf, £145, by Charlotte Taylor; young britishdesigners.com. 5 Giles Deacon AW11. 6 Spider-print dress, £390, 7 robot-print shirt, £195, and 8 penguin-print shirt, £195, all by Charlotte Taylor, as before

UPDATE FASHION NEWS

STYLE DIGITAL

WHAT'S ON THIS WEEK AT THEUNDAYTIMES.CO.UK/STYLE

Girls on film
See, supermodels can speak. And think. Meet Karen Elson in our sexy behind-the-scenes fashion film for Roberto Cavalli.

The 1990s now
It's the stylish decade that won't go away. Join us for a fashion trip down memory lane as we celebrate the grunge trends influencing autumn's catwalks.

The great British C party
It's all about the supper club: take a peek inside Sadie Frost's dining room as she throws a tasty five-course feast for friends in aid of the Hepatitis C Trust.

Kids get cool
Follow the photographer Rankin in our exclusive fashion film, shooting autumn's hottest kids' clothes.

Style app of the week
How ugly are you? The Ugly Meter takes your photo and gives you a rating of 1-10. Dare you?

Style is now live on Facebook — let's be friends

Follow the Style team on Twitter at @TheSTStyle

EVERYONE'S DOING IT DOGGY STYLE WITH A CANINE-PRINT JUMPER – WOOF, WOOF

TREND WATCH SUMMER STRIPES

Forget bailouts, budget cuts and the small matter of Suri Cruise losing her blankie — the biggest news from America comes in the form of a little stripy dress (LSD.) The LA item du jour was sensationally revealed to be a $50 number from the US high-street hottie (nottie) Express. In a carefully co-ordinated fashion parade, the likes of Zoe Saldana (far left) and January Jones simultaneously discovered the joys of stretchy and stripy for summer — a simple fashion fix if ever we've seen one. So why, oh why, did Anne Hathaway get her attempt (left) so spectacularly wrong? With her directional take on the LSD, all jaunty seams and floppy fishtail hem (don't even get us started on those finger-toe sandals), she has taken a perfectly good basic and butchered it. Piece of advice, chuck. Stick to what you know. Ditto with the Yaarrkshire accent.

SMOKIN' STACK

Astley Clarke has launched a line of Create Your Own stacker rings as part of its Colour collection. With 40 colours and more than 70 styles to mix and match, you can design your own teeny tiny jewellery wardrobe. Get frosting. Rings, £55-£160; astleyclarke.com

SKINTED & MINTED

« ASOS
Go from work to play in shades of grey, £65

« GIANNI
But don't you step on these grey suede shoes, £182, from Anthropology